I don't think my mother will ever understand that I am an adult with my own thoughts and opinions.

That's part of the checklist of being a mother. That, and sharing plenty of those horseshit photo stories on Facebook. The ones that start 'this soldier came home to see his family...' Or 'we must stop this person, share dis photo'

That it's normal for someone to want to deal with bodily functions before cleaning the house.

They will never understand why I have chosen to get tattoos / piercings. I'm the only one in my family (including extended family) that actually has tattoos and piercings as well so I'm pretty sure I'm just a walking anomaly in my family.

Text Generation Gap: U R 2 Old (JK)

By LAURA M. HOLSON MARCH 9, 2008

AS president of the Walt Disney Company's children's book and magazine publishing unit, Russell Hampton knows a thing or two about teenagers. Or he thought as much until he was driving his 14-year-old daughter, Katie, and two friends to a play last year in Los Angeles.

"Katie and her friends were sitting in the back seat talking to each other about some movie star; I think it was Orlando Bloom," recalled Mr. Hampton, whose company produced the "Pirates of the Caribbean" movies, in which the actor starred. "I made some comment about him, I don't remember exactly what, but I got the typical teenager guttural sigh and Katie rolled her eyes at me as if to say, 'Oh Dad, you are so out of it.' "

After that, the back-seat chattering stopped. When Mr. Hampton looked into his rearview mirror he saw his daughter sending a text message on her cellphone. "Katie, you shouldn't be texting all the time," Mr. Hampton recalled telling her. "Your friends are there. It's rude." Katie rolled her eyes again.

"But, Dad, we're texting each other," she replied with a harrumph. "I don't want you to hear what I'm saying."

Chastened, Mr. Hampton turned his attention back to the freeway. It's a common scene these days, one playing out in cars, kitchens and bedrooms
